Alabama Adoption Guide for Healthcare Providers & Staff

Prepared by Kelsey Vander Vliet Ranyard and Celeste Liversidge, JD, of Ethical Family Building; Ethical Family Building is a nonprofit organization working to safeguard domestic adoptions through education, transparency, and accountability.

Disclaimer: This resource guide is intended for informational purposes only and does not constitute legal advice. It is not a substitute for consultation with hospital legal counsel or a licensed adoption attorney. Adoption laws and procedures vary by jurisdiction and are subject to change. Healthcare providers and staff are strongly encouraged to seek professional legal guidance to ensure compliance with applicable laws and regulations.

Introduction to Adoption

What Is Adoption?

Adoption is a legal process where biological parents (also referred to herein as “placing parents” or “birth parents” relinquish their parental rights to their child, allowing the child to be placed in the care of adoptive parents. However, adoption is more than just a legal agreement; it is a life-altering experience that reflects a commitment to a child's love, care, and well-being.

Healthcare providers should have a basic understanding of the three main types of adoption to offer informed support for their patients:

- Private Adoption: This is a direct arrangement between birth parents and adoptive parents, often through a licensed adoption agency or attorney. In a private adoption, the birth parents have voluntarily relinquished their parental rights to the child, and the child is placed directly into the legal and physical custody of the adoptive parents. Most private adoptions are “open adoptions,” meaning there will be ongoing contact between the birth parents and adoptive parents. Private adoption is the most common type of adoption that healthcare providers encounter when working in mother-baby and neonatal units.
- Adoption from Foster Care: This occurs when a child in state foster care is legally available for adoption after a court has terminated the parental rights of the birth parents. Foster care adoptions often involve older children. Every state has laws and regulations governing foster care and adoption, which are managed by the state's public child welfare agency. If the child is placed for adoption in another state, compliance with the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children (ICPC) is required.

- Intercountry Adoption: The process by which a child born in one country is adopted by a family in another country. The State Department serves as the oversight authority for intercountry adoption in the United States.

For expectant mothers, the adoption journey is filled with complex emotions and culminates in a life-changing decision. The private adoption process allows mothers to create an adoption plan at any point during their pregnancy or after giving birth. In this journey, healthcare providers play a crucial role, providing neutral care and support, facilitating fully informed decision-making, and making ethical referrals to adoption providers. Your role in this process is integral in ensuring the well-being of all patients considering this option.

Important Terminology

The biological parent signs adoption consent or relinquishment, authorizing the court to terminate her parental rights:

- Before adoption consents are signed, refer to the biological parent as an “expectant parent” or “parent”
- A parent making an adoption plan for their child is called a “placing parent”
- After adoption consents are signed, refer to the biological parent as a “birth parent.”

Support for Patients Considering Adoption

Expectant parents should have access to a variety of support resources from the moment they begin considering adoption through the completion of the process and beyond. Below is a summary of some of the available services and providers that patients can access to find appropriate support.

Pregnancy Options Counseling

Many non-profit organizations in Alabama offer pregnancy options counseling for expectant mothers. The purpose of this counseling is to help women consider their available options during pregnancy. It is important to note that not all pregnancy centers provide the same services. For instance, some pregnancy resource centers do not offer information or referrals for abortion. However, most centers typically provide services such as pregnancy testing, ultrasounds, maternity clothes, parenting assistance, resource referrals, parenting classes, and counseling. Generally, these organizations do not charge fees unless they also operate a licensed medical clinic on site.

Ethical & Effective Referrals

Empowering patients in their decision-making process is key. When making a referral to an adoption provider, it's important to present at least three options. This allows the patient to understand the range of services available and choose the one that best suits her needs. See the Understanding Infant Adoption curriculum handouts Questions for Healthcare Practitioners to Ask Adoption Agencies and/or Attorneys and Questions for Patients to Ask Adoption Agencies and/or Attorneys for suggestions.

Choosing an Adoption Provider

The internet is full of adoption providers offering help to expectant parents, but not all of these entities have your patients' best interests at heart. It's essential to understand the different types of adoption professionals available:

- Licensed Adoption Agencies: Adoption agencies are licensed by the state to provide adoption services to expectant/birth parents and adoptive families. These services can include social work, home studies, adoption education, pregnancy counseling, adoption matching, and post-placement care. Agencies work to ensure that social and emotional challenges are addressed through social work and counseling, while also ensuring compliance with adoption rules and regulations.

- Licensed Adoption Attorneys: Attorneys play a vital role in the adoption process. Ideally, the adoptive parents should have their own attorney, and the expectant or birth parents should be represented by a separate attorney. This ensures that everyone's rights are protected and that there are no conflicts of interest. Attorneys in Alabama are licensed by the Alabama State Bar Association.
- Unlicensed Adoption Intermediaries: Some adoption providers are not licensed to offer adoption services. Unlicensed adoption intermediaries are also referred to as “advertisers,” “matchmakers,” “brokers,” or “marketers.” They solicit expectant and adoptive parents for their services through online ads and other marketing tactics and collect substantial matching fees from hopeful adoptive parents. Working with an unlicensed adoption provider can complicate the process for expectant mothers trying to find suitable adoptive parents for their children and can prevent them from getting adequate support and guidance. It is very appropriate to ask an agency to see a copy of their state-issued child-placing agency license.

More than half of the states in the U.S. have laws prohibiting the use of unlicensed adoption intermediaries, but such laws are frequently overlooked. In Alabama, only a licensed child-placing agency may place a minor for adoption or engage in the business of placing a minor for adoption. See Alabama Adoption Laws, below, for further information.

- Out-of-State Adoption Providers: With the increasing use of the Internet in the adoption process, patients may choose to work with adoption providers located outside of Alabama. It's crucial to ensure these out-of-state providers are licensed to provide adoption services and that they work cooperatively with an Alabama-licensed adoption agency and attorney to ensure that the placing parents receive local support before, during, and after adoption. This not only ensures legal compliance but also the safety and well-being of the patient and the child.

Choosing Prospective Adoptive Parents

The process of selecting adoptive parents requires careful consideration. Expectant parents often have a specific vision of the type of family they wish to find for their child. An Alabama-licensed child-placing agency or attorney can assist expectant parents in identifying potential adoptive families that align with their desired characteristics. Once the expectant parent has reviewed profiles of suitable prospective adoptive parents, she should have the opportunity to meet with them in person whenever possible before making a final decision.

Expectant parents should create a list of questions to ask prospective adoptive parents to ensure they find the right family for their child. However, compiling this list can be overwhelming. See the handout Questions for Patients to Ask Adoption Agencies and/or Attorneys for suggestions.

Support After Adoption

Birth parents often experience grief and a range of intense emotional and psychological effects after placing a child for adoption. It is important to provide them with mental health support during this time. Support following adoption can take various forms, including individual counseling, group therapy, and support groups.

Alabama Adoption Laws

Adoption is a complex legal process. Violating state laws can jeopardize the safety of all parties involved, as well as the child's permanency. Below are frequently asked questions regarding Alabama's adoption laws.

Does Alabama allow independent (non-agency) adoptions?

Yes. Alabama does allow independent (non-agency) adoptions, often referred to as "private" or "independent" adoptions. In these cases, the adoption is arranged directly between the birth parents and the adoptive parents, typically with the assistance of an attorney rather than a licensed adoption agency.

Does Alabama allow unlicensed adoption facilitators?

Alabama does not permit unlicensed adoption facilitators. Only the Department of Human Resources or a licensed child-placing agency is authorized to place a minor for adoption or to engage in the business of placing minors for adoption. Violating this law is classified as a Class A misdemeanor for the first offense and a Class C felony for any subsequent offenses. Ala. Code § 26-10E-22

Does Alabama require that placing parents have separate legal representation?

No. However, placing parents who are minors must have a guardian ad litem appointed to represent their interests before consenting to the adoption. Ala. Code § 26-10E-8

Are adoptive parents allowed to pay an expectant mother's living expenses?

Yes, adoptive parents may pay for the birth mother's maternity-related medical and necessary living expenses before and during her pregnancy-related incapacity. However, these payments are considered acts of charity, as long as they are not contingent upon the placement of the minor for adoption, consent to the adoption, or cooperation in completing the adoption. Ala. Code § 26-10E-22\(b\)\(2\)

When can the placing parents sign the adoption consent or relinquishment?

Placing parents are allowed to sign adoption consents at any time, including before the child's birth. These consents must be witnessed by a notary public, judge, clerk, or an individual appointed by an agency authorized to conduct investigations or home studies. Ala. Code § 26-10E-12

If a placing parent chooses to sign the adoption consent before the child's birth, it must be signed in front of a judge. It is important to note that placing parents cannot be required to sign the adoption consent prior to the child's birth.

Can placing parents who have consented to an adoption change their mind and revoke their consent?

Placing parents who choose to sign a consent before the child is born have five (5) days from the child's birth to withdraw the consent. Placing parents who sign the consent after the child is born have five (5) days from the date the consent is signed to revoke. Ala. Code § 26-10E-13

Are post-adoption contact agreements legally binding in Alabama?

No. Alabama law does not address this issue. Birth parents should be informed that open adoption agreements are not legally enforceable in Alabama. Practically speaking, this means that if the adoptive parents do not honor the agreed-upon terms of contact, the birth parents won't be able to legally enforce the agreement.

What legal rights do birth fathers have in an Alabama adoption?

In all states, including Alabama, birth fathers' legal rights in adoption depend on various factors, such as their legal relationship with the child's mother and their actions before and after being notified of the adoption proceedings. Birth fathers who wish to understand and enforce their legal rights should consult with an Alabama adoption attorney for guidance.

What to do when you suspect a violation in your hospital?

If you witness violations of Alabama law in your hospital or healthcare clinic, you should immediately file a report. Where you file the report will depend on the type of entity or individual who has committed the offense. If you witness repeated offenses, please alert your healthcare administration office.

Mandated Reporters

All hospitals, clinics, doctors, physicians, surgeons, medical examiners, nurses, social workers, and mental health professionals are considered mandated reporters.

Child Abuse, Neglect, and Exploitation Definitions under Alabama Law

Under Alabama law, a child is any person under the age of 18.

- Child Abuse: Harm or threatened harm to a child's health or welfare. Harm or threatened harm to a child's health or welfare can occur through a nonaccidental physical or mental injury, sexual abuse, attempted sexual abuse, or attempted sexual exploitation.
- Child Neglect: Negligent treatment or maltreatment of a child, including the failure to provide adequate food, medical treatment, supervision, clothing, or shelter.

Ala. Code § 26-14-1

Where to Report

Contact your county's Department of Human Resources to report incidents of abuse, neglect, or exploitation to the proper state child protection agency.

Safe Haven/Safe Surrender Laws and Process

Safe Haven/Safe Surrender laws are designed to prevent the abandonment and endangerment of infants by providing a safe and legal way for parents to relinquish unharmed newborns. These laws allow parents to safely surrender their infant directly to a designated provider, while generally protecting them from criminal liability and prosecution. Additionally, these laws ensure that the relinquishing parent can remain anonymous. It is important to note that Safe Haven/Safe Surrender laws are intended for use in extreme circumstances and are not a substitute for the resources provided in the public child welfare system or private adoption processes.

- For Immediate Assistance: Call or text the 24/7 Safe Haven Crisis Helpline at 1-888-510-BABY (2229)

What are the age restrictions for a Safe Haven/Safe Surrender relinquishment in Alabama?

The infant must be 45 days old or younger. Ala. Code § 26-25-1\(a\)\(4\)

Who can relinquish the infant under Safe Haven/Safe Surrender laws?

A parent of the child may relinquish the infant. Ala. Code § 26-25-1\(a\)\(4\)

Who are the designated Safe Haven/Safe Surrender providers?

In Alabama, a parent may relinquish the infant for a Safe Haven/Safe Surrender through an emergency medical services provider, which includes a licensed hospital that operates an emergency department, or any individual licensed healthcare provider, including a physician, dentist, nurse, physician assistant, or any other health professional. Ala. Code § 26-25-1\(a\)\(4\)

Putative Father Registry

A putative father is a person who claims to be the father of a child and wants to establish paternity. The purpose of a registry is to allow an unmarried father of a born or unborn child to register his name so he will be notified before the child is placed for adoption. The father does not have to be listed on the birth certificate to register.

Alabama has a putative father registry; alleged fathers must file a notice of intent to claim paternity prior to the child's birth or within a 30-day period after the child's birth. Failure to file within this timeframe grants irrevocable implied consent to any adoption proceeding. Ala. Code §§ 26-10C-1 and 26-10C-2

About the Adoption-Sensitive Clinical Care Project

It is critical that expectant parents who may wish to place a child for adoption have access to appropriately trained staff and comprehensive supports throughout the adoption process. The federally-funded Adoption-Sensitive Clinical Care Project and the Understanding Infant Adoption curriculum are being administered by National Council For Adoption \(NCFA\), The Adoption & Foster Care Clinic, Spaulding for Children, and University of Washington School of Social Work for the project period 2024-2026.

The project is supported by the Administration for Children and Families (ACF) of the United States (U.S.) Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) as part of a financial assistance award (award #90CO1147-01-00) totaling $1,000,000, with 100 percent funded by ACF/HHS.
